Created a "seamless" interface (based on Ajax technology) for training staff using JavaScript as the frontend and backend of the solution, html+css+jQuery on the client side. 3. Provided the customer with many reports from the database using MS SQL SERVER and SQL query language.

	While working in the development Department: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Created an automatic routing system for a Java application using Ant as an assembler. After building the application on a Windows computer, it was automatically downloaded to the Linux server via SCP and started there with the SSH command. 2. Created a procedure in MS SQL SERVER for automatic promotions in Magnit stores. 3. Using the "adapter" design pattern and reflection, I replaced the standard data loading scheme from JDBC with automatically creating class instances for entities loaded from the database. This makes the app easy to test, as you can now easily model test data. 4. changes were Made to the program logic for numerous tasks from analysts. Corporate version control system: SVN Methodologies: flexible (SCRUM, weekly sprints) and waterfall for long-term projects.
